Post-Activity Quiz

Complete the following essay questions:

1. What are some examples of software being written that have no way to test all possible scenarios to verify that the programs work correctly?

2. What are the implications for using software that by definition cannot be tested for all cases?

3. Might some cases exist in which software could be considered fully tested even though the software has not been tested against some situations and circumstances?